The NATIONAL MUSEUM OF BERMUDA PRESS is publishing Bermuda Sentinel: The Royal Naval Base 1795–1950 by renowned naval dockyard historian Jonathan Coad and seeks subscribers to support the publication.

Bermuda's Royal Naval Dockyard, established in 1809, has had a significant impact on the Island's history, landscape and heritage. Today, it plays an important role as a major port, tourism centre and historical landmark.

The book traces the development of Dockyard from its initial establishment as a group of wooden buildings to its fully realised role as a vital link in the British Empire's global network of naval bases. Using original documents from international and local archives, the book focusses on the Bermuda Dockyard's architectural and civil engineering history, and documents its majestic buildings and what it took to operate and manage a massive industrial complex.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Jonathan Coad MA, FSA, FSNR is an award-winning archaeologist, architectural historian and author.
